

Hyaluronan injections have been used to relieve knee pain secondary to osteoarthritis, for those who fail to respond to simple painkillers, exercise or physical therapy. Hyaluronan is a substance that doctors inject directly into your knee joint, where it may supplement the knee joint's natural synovial fluid, relieving pain and improving your ability to use the knee. This treatment is also called viscosupplementation.